

Prophecy Given At Word Of Life

10-2-05

“I speak to every adult here this morning! There will always be distractions amongst you...there will always be something to take your eyes away from me. But when you make that choice, when you decide within yourself that you say, ‘I will choose to follow you Lord! I will not let those things distract me! I will meet you...I will go to you!’ You run to me and I will meet with you.

To every teen here this morning: You must choose! You must choose me! I have already chosen you, but you must choose me. Yes, you also will have distractions, you also will have those things that will entice you...that will drive you away from me. But again, you choose me and I will meet you! I will show you what I have for you!

To every child that is here...to every child that says, ‘I want to put my God first!’ I will meet that child! I do not care about age. If a child chooses me...I will pour out my Spirit upon them because there is a great thing ahead for this place. It is not this building! It is not what you have lifted up here! It is YOU! It is you that I abide in, it is you that I draw close to! You choose me....you choose me and it is you that I will work through. There are people that will come in this place that receive of me...because you have chosen!”
